Our project is an IOS application which needs a lot of user's action. Therefore, our Unit Test and Integration Test are also based on the user's action by clicking bottom. In the document of these tests, we use plain text to show how to test the functioning use case and the interaction between each view. But the test is still in need of human operation, hope you can understand. Also, we don't need to pre-load any data and the data_collection is just a document explain that.
